

Journal journey

Anna! A journal is not just a diary. A diary is a summary of what happened to you each day. A journal, on the other hand, includes reflections on your day and yourself. It's a GPS for your spirit. I know all about this, because I'm also guided by a GPS. Journals lead to insight, growth and, sometimes, to achieving a goal.

1 How time flies

In this learning object you were introduced to three new words for expressing various facets of time. Let's examine how tinggal, berlalu and segera were used in the learning object.

Tinggal means to live or stay somewhere. However, when preceding a duration or period of time, it means that there is that amount of time remaining.

➔ For example:

Tinggal dua hari lagi sebelum pulang.
There are two days remaining before we go home.

Berlalu is derived from lalu, which, among other things, means 'to pass'. When berlalu follows an expression or period of time, it means the passing of either a specific or non-specific period of time.

➔ For example:

Liburan dua minggu saya terlalu cepat berlalu.
My two week holiday was over too quickly.
Waktu cepat sekali berlalu.
The time has passed really quickly.

Segera means 'soon' or 'immediately'. Segera can be used either before or after a verb and has the effect of stating that the action of that verb will, needs to, or must be undertaken, soon or immediately.

➔ For example:

Nggak sabar untuk segera pulang.
I can't wait to get home (soon).

2 That looks and sounds great

Throughout Stage 2 and Stage 3 you have heard various characters express their opinions, or describe situations or events, by saying that something looks or sounds great. Now is a perfect time to look at some of these expressions again, since they often appear in a journal.

➔ For example:

Kedengarannya film itu seru sekali.
That film sounds really exciting.

Reruntuhan tersembunyi di Sekarsari kelihatannya menarik sekali.
The concealed ruins in Sekarsari look very interesting.

3 No interjections!

Interjections are useful words when it comes to expressing feelings or emotions and often abound in journal writing. Let's review some of the interjections you have already learned.

Aduh!	Oh dear! / Oh my!
Astaga!	Gosh! / Heaven forbid!
Asyik!	Terrific! / Great!

Celaka!	Alas!
Hebat!	Great!
Kasihannya!	Pity! / Poor thing!
Luar biasa!	Incredible!
Sayang sekali!	Too bad! / It's a pity
Untung!	Lucky!
Wah!	Wow!
Ya, ampun!	Oh no!

Exercises

Exercise 1

It has been several months since Kate returned to Brisbane after her two-week holiday in Jakarta. Anna and Peter have contacted her about their plans to organise a joint school excursion to Tallebudgera Beach Outdoor Education School with Sekolah Harapan Bangsa and Fern Tree Creek State High School.

Below is the daily program for the camp reproduced from Module 12, Work Sheet 2, Sun, surf and sand.

Hari Pertama: Petualangan Kanu

Para siswa bekerja dalam kelompok untuk menguasai ketrampilan dasar berkanu dulu sebelum memulai perjalanan melalui perairan milik pemilik tradisional wilayah itu, yaitu suku Yugambeh. Siswa akan langsung turun tangan untuk mempelajari cara-cara hidup yang berkesinambungan dari suku Yugambeh tersebut. Mereka akan mengembangkan kemampuan bodyboarding mereka di bawah bimbingan guru ahli.

Hari Ketiga: Bersepeda Gandeng, Membuat Rakit & Kerjasama kelompok di sungai kecil
