Topic: International Popularity of Rugby League:

Rugby league is played in over 70 nations throughout the world. Four countries – Australia, England, France, and New Zealand, – have teams that play at a professional level, while the rest are semi-professional, mainly in Papua New Guinea and Wales, or amateur. 45 national teams are ranked by the RLIF and a further 32 are officially recognized and unranked. The strongest rugby league nations are Australia, England, New Zealand, Samoa and Tonga. Two countries, Papua New Guinea and Cook Islands, have Rugby league as their national sport. The 2022 Men's Rugby League World Cup, made up of 16 competing nations, was hosted by England during October and November 2022. Some NRL players who would have been eligible to play for Australia, decided instead to play for their country of heritage.
